Preamble

This document provides for the organization of the College of Social Work at the University of Tennessee and for the rules of the faculty of the College. The functions and responsibilities of the dean of the College described in this document are those prescribed by the Governing Regulations of the University in compliance with the Council on Social Work Education. The functions and responsibilities of the faculty are those prescribed by the Governing Regulations of the University of Tennessee, and the Faculty of the College.

Copies of the rules of the faculty and all subsequent amendments shall be submitted to the Provost, filed with all appropriate University bodies and offices, and distributed to all members of the faculty and its committees, and shall be maintained by the dean so as to be freely available to the members of the faculty and other authorized persons. The Structure of the College of Social Work (CSW) is delineated in the following organizational chart.

THE COLLEGE OF SOCIAL WORK

DESCRIPTION, HISTORY, VISION, AND MISSION

The College of Social Work offers undergraduate and graduate studies leading to the BSSW, MSSW, DSW, and PhD degrees in Social Work. These programs prepare graduates to work effectively in complex human service organizations in governmental and voluntary settings in community, regional, state, and national systems. In addition to its academic programs, the College of Social Work provides local, state and national training, consultation and research through its Social Work Office on Research and Public Service (SWORPS), the major training and regional research arm of the College. Also housed in the College of Social Work, the Children's Mental Health Services Research Center (CMHSRC) serves as the research arm of the College, and focuses on research and grant opportunities to develop a body of knowledge about children who are at risk, the factors which place them at risk, the quality of the services being provided to them, and the long-term outcomes.

Since 1942, the College has a special mission to serve the needs of the state for advanced social work education. Therefore, the College also seeks to contribute to the development of the profession of social work and to professional social work education through research and scholarly activities by faculty and professional staff and to provide service to both the University and social service communities.

The College's heritage dates back to 1942 with the founding of the Nashville School of Social Work through a cooperative effort of Scarritt and Peabody Colleges and Vanderbilt University. The first Master's degrees in social work were awarded in June 1944 by Vanderbilt University. The College was initially accredited in 1945 by the American Association of Schools of Social Work, now the Council on Social Work Education (CSWE), and has maintained that status continuously to present. In 1950 a campus program was established in Memphis. In 1951, the College became a program in the Graduate School of The University of Tennessee, Knoxville. A resident faculty member was assigned to Knoxville in 1952, and a full campus program has been operational in Knoxville since 1958. The dean's office and other central operations continued to be located in Nashville until 1973, when these were relocated on the Knoxville campus. The doctoral program was approved in 1982 and enrolled its first class of students in September 1983. In 1985, a small, accredited social work undergraduate program on the Knoxville campus, Liberal Arts division, was placed under the direction of the (then) School of Social Work. Thus, over a span of 59 years, The University of Tennessee College of Social Work has developed from a small school in Nashville to a regionally and nationally recognized College of Social Work offering the full continuum of social work education.

The College of Social Work is a separate administrative unit within the University of Tennessee. The College of Social Work is administered by a dean who is appointed by and reports directly to the Executive Vice-President for Academic Affairs and Provost.

The faculty, through its governance structure, maintains responsibility and control over admissions, curriculum design, educational policy, review and recommendation of candidates for faculty positions, and review and review and recommendation of faculty for promotion and tenure. New courses and new programs are reviewed by the College's Curriculum Committees, the dean, the University's Undergraduate and Graduate Schools and the College of Social Work faculty as appropriate.

The budgets of the College are developed in conjunction with the overall budget of the University and are dependent on allocations from the Legislature, the Board of Regents, and independent fund-raising. The dean of the College is responsible for management of the budget allocated to the College. However, separate operating budgets are allocated by the dean to the BSSW-, the MSSW-, DSW-, and the PhD- programs on the Knoxville and Nashville campuses. SWORPS and the CMHSRC maintain separate budgets that are dependent upon external funds obtained through contracts and grants.

The College's Search and Screen committee conducts recruitment and searches for new faculty. The faculty makes its recommendations on candidates to the dean, who in turn makes recommendations to the Executive Vice-President for Academic Affairs and Provost. The College's Tenure and Promotion committee reviews faculty, and makes recommendations to the dean, for tenure and promotion.

Vision Statement

(Developed and adopted by the College faculty in 1998; revised by the faculty 1/17/2005).

The University of Tennessee College of Social Work seeks to be a humane community of proactive, engaged learners who are prepared to greet change with receptive intellectual curiosity. The College aspires to be an institution that recognizes change and its implications for social work practice, and that fosters leadership in social change and creativity to address human needs for social and economic justice, while remaining focused on the values, ethics, and history of social work.

The College aspires to excellence in classroom and field instruction that support critical thinking, life-long learning, and responsiveness to the needs of diverse students, practitioners, alumni, and clients. The College strives for excellence in research through the meticulous and responsible use of the best available research methods, interdisciplinary collaboration, and programs of research designed to address questions critical to social work concerns. The College endeavors to attain excellence in public service through numerous efforts that benefit the community, profession, and University while supporting our educational and research missions whenever possible. By striving for excellence the College aspires to preeminence as a leader locally, statewide, nationally, and internationally in social work education, research and practice with regard to the quality of life of vulnerable populations, especially high-risk children and their families living in urban and rural poverty.

Excellence is fostered across the state in the two campuses of the College using high standards in the hiring of faculty and staff and in the selection of students, and applying rigorous performance standards and rewards for achievement. Excellence is supported across the state in both campuses of the College through a supportive infrastructure, cross-campus collaboration that draws on the unique strengths of the individual campuses, continuing education, a close relationship between the College, the public, and the professional community, an ongoing commitment to our alumni, the acquisition of external funding, and the utilization of advanced computer technology.

In striving for excellence and preeminence, our professional values, ethics, history, and the future demand social work educators, researchers, and practitioners that are culturally competent and vested in responding to oppressive societal and political trends. Thus, the College seeks diversity in its faculty, field instructors, students and staff. Cultural relevance and sensitivity to the personal, social, economic, and political needs of vulnerable, high-risk groups is emphasized throughout the education, research, and service of students and faculty.

The Mission of the University of Tennessee, College of Social Work

The College of Social Work is committed to advancing the mission of The University of Tennessee, as the state's land grant, flagship University, to provide a quality public education for the citizens of Tennessee through exemplary teaching, research, and service. The College of Social Work strives to provide a professional social work education program that prepares both undergraduate and graduate students for social work practice and doctoral level graduates as social work researchers and academicians. The educational goals of the College are accomplished by faculty committed to the use of teaching methods that foster critical thinking and life-long learning, and are responsive to the needs of a diverse student body. The College's research efforts are grounded in interdisciplinary collaboration and scholarship that seeks to increase knowledge for the benefit of individuals, families, organizations and communities. Community outreach services are rendered by faculty, staff, and students who seek to enhance the quality of life for people and human systems in Tennessee, with particular concern for improving the life conditions, social and economic justice for at-risk populations. The mission of the CSW is undertaken with a commitment to social work's professional code of ethics and the values of the profession.

Implementation of College Mission

The statewide mission of the College of Social Work is met through the various parts of its organization. In order to prepare competent social work practitioners with specialized skills and knowledge, the College offers the comprehensive MSSW program across the state. The BSSW Program is offered on the Knoxville campus providing this educational opportunity at the largest four-year, undergraduate campus in the state. PhD classes are offered on the Knoxville campus. Ph. students may then pursue their dissertation studies in Knoxville or Nashville, working with faculty qualified to direct dissertations. The Doctor of Social Work (DSW) is offered as a hybrid distance education program. The Social Work Office of Research and Public Service contributes to the research and service components in the College, providing staff that implement public social service training programs and conduct evaluative research throughout Tennessee. The Children's Mental Health Services Research Center has its primary offices in Knoxville with staff that work with faculty across the College and are active in research grant applications and administration. The Research Center provides an infrastructure that assists faculty seeking grant funding. Faculty and students provide additional services to agencies and organizations across the state.

Compatibility of the College of Social Work's Mission and the University of Tennessee's Mission

The University Mission statement emphasizes the need to "recruit, develop, and retain excellent faculty skilled in teaching, basic and applied research, creative activity, and public service . . ." (UT Board of Trustees, Mission Statement, 1990). The College of Social Work has actively recruited talented faculty who are dedicated scholars and teachers, as well as evincing a commitment to community service. Our success in recruiting scholars is evident in our faculty's presentations at prominent national social work conferences and in the frequency of publications in peer-reviewed social work journals. Student evaluations of our faculty compiled by the University (see University 101) and by the College attest to the educational skills of the faculty. The College's faculty are known by the practice community for their involvement in services to agencies and social welfare programs.

Preamble

By adoption and periodic review of these bylaws, the faculty evidences its commitment to full participation in the academic governance of the College. The faculty seeks, through the exercise of the decision-making responsibilities recognized herein, to organize its resources as a community of scholars to help conduct the affairs of the College of Social Work not only in its own best interests but also in those of the larger academic community of which it is an integral part.

Programs of the College are offered in two separate geographic campuses within the state (Knoxville and Nashville) and via distance education. This deployment of faculty and staff and distribution of students, though necessary and desirable, adds complexity to the process of collegial relations. Because of this, the College especially values and depends upon the continuing cooperative, forthcoming efforts of its members.

The College provides one of the few master's programs and the only doctoral programs in social work within the state of Tennessee. It thus carries a unique responsibility for preparing social workers for entry into advanced practitioner, educational, and research roles. The College also provides education at the baccalaureate level, has a special unit to enhance research and public service endeavors in social work, and administers a research center focusing on children's mental health services.
