Description

This course establishes a connection between social welfare policy and social work practice. As such, first, the historic foundations of the social work profession with its societal philosophy and mission are taught. Second, theoretical frameworks pertaining to formulation and analysis of social welfare policies are addressed. Current social welfare policies and services as well as the contemporary economic, social, political, and organizational processes, factors and forces shaping these policies are examined within these frameworks. Particular emphasis is put on the development and implementation of policies within organizations and the roles social workers assume as critical thinkers in effecting change. The practice of policy is regarded as a tool to understanding and influencing the policymaking process as various organizational forces shape it and as it effects service delivery. Finally, the history, evolution and current status of social welfare policies and services in the United States are presented and critically analyzed in terms of their responsiveness to the needs of the society in general and to the needs of vulnerable, high risk groups in particular, within the principles of equality, social and economic justice and fairness, non-discrimination, and cultural diversity. Professional self-development for competent policy practice is emphasized. Influence of social policy on the holistic health and well being of individuals, society, and social work practice is acknowledged.

Rationale

This course is one of three foundation courses, along with Social Work Practice III and Human Behavior and Social Environment II, providing the students with the knowledge about, and orientation to, the integration of macro theories and practices into the designs and functioning of social welfare policies, programs, and services. Through their participation in this course, students appreciate and learn the place and influence of social welfare policies and services in the society and make professional use of them for the attainment, maintenance and/or enhancement of the quality of health and well being of their clients.

Objectives

By the end of the course, students are expected to be able to demonstrate (through course activities, assignments and/or exams):

1. Knowledge of history, mission and philosophy of the social work profession in the context of social policies guiding us into the second millennium and twenty-first century;
2. Knowledge of history and nature of social welfare policies and services and their effects on the social work profession and human service agencies;
3. Knowledge of social problems as constructions of social realities; their definitions, evolutions, and resolutions;
4. Knowledge of the roles of societal and professional values, ethics and self development in policy formulation and analysis;
5. Knowledge of frameworks for critical thinking, problem-solving, policy formulation, and policy analysis;
6. Knowledge of current social welfare policies and the organization and structure of systems developed to deliver related services;
7. Knowledge of the political and organizational processes and actions to influence policy making, analysis, advocacy, empowerment, and policy practice;
8. Knowledge of relationships between social welfare policies and social and economic justice as well as the institutional forms of discrimination, oppression, and social control;
9. Knowledge of the significance of human diversity in shaping and analyzing policy as it relates to professionally and culturally competent practice;
10. Skill in constructing historical and current socioeconomic contexts within which social welfare policies are analyzed and designed;
11. Skill in assessing and defining social problems addressed by social welfare policies; formulating and analyzing social welfare policies;
12. Skill in identifying, clarifying and interpreting values and professional ethical standards, and applying them to the formulation and analysis of social welfare policies;
13. Skill in identifying and using critical thinking and the theoretical frameworks in the formulation and analysis of social welfare policies;
14. Skill in applying social and economic justice concepts and principles to the formulation and analysis of social welfare policies;
15. Skill in determining intended and unintended effects of policies on both majority and minority populations of color, women, gays, lesbians, the poor, people with disabilities, and other vulnerable, high risk populations;
16. Skill in advocating, empowerment and policy practice.

Course Outline:

- I Nature of Social Policy and Social Policy Analysis

- II Defining Social Welfare Policy
- III The Role of Policy Analysis in Understanding the Policy Process
- IV Ethics in the Policy Process
- V Historical Development of Social Welfare Policy and Services and the Relationship to the Social Work Profession
- VI The Role of Policy Practice in Social Work
- VII Current Policy Issues and Strategies for Influencing Policy
- VIII Affecting Change in Social Welfare Policy

Course Requirements:

A basic text has been selected and readings are listed in the bibliography. In addition to assigned articles, students are encouraged to read from the recommended selections and independently from the professional journals.

The course will include lectures, class discussions, and small group class exercises. Graded assignments will include a mid-term examination, a policy analysis paper, a report on a public hearing or committee meeting, and a final examination. All written assignments should be double-spaced and sources should be documented and referenced using APA format. No more than 50% of your sources should be obtained from Internet resources.

The final grade will be determined as follows:

Mid-term exam	25%
Policy analysis paper and proposal	25%
Policy hearing report	25%
Final exam	25%
Total	100%

Students will be expected to: 1) complete assigned readings for preparation for each class session; (2) attend class and participate in class discussion/activities; and (3) complete all assignments. Student grades may be lowered for omissions in these areas.

Grading Scale:

The grading scale for this course is:

90-100%	A
87-89%	B+
80-86%	B
77-79%	C+
70-76%	C
65-70%	D
<65	F

Criteria for the assignments are as follows:

Policy Analysis Proposal

Identify a potential area of policy change. It can be a local, state, or federal policy, but it must be current. Describe your chosen policy. How does this policy affect vulnerable populations? Discuss why you believe your chosen policy needs to change. Include objective factors such as impact on client populations, cost/benefit analysis, etc. Choose the policy analysis framework that will be used to analyze the policy. Describe what areas the analysis will need to focus on according to this framework.

The proposal should be typed, double-spaced, with no spelling or grammar errors. The length of the proposal should be 3-5 pages. Attach a copy of the policy to the paper.

Due date: October 7, 2002

Policy Analysis Paper

Using the chosen policy and the chosen framework identified in the proposal, analyze this policy. Propose changes to the policy based on what was learned from the analysis process. The following points must be included in the paper:

17. A description and discussion of the policy. How does this policy affect vulnerable populations? Attach a copy of the policy to your paper.
18. A description and discussion of your chosen policy analysis framework. Provide a rationale for why you chose this particular model.
19. Using your chosen model, provide a step-by- step analysis of your policy.
20. Based on your analysis, provide specific recommendations for policy changes. These recommendations are to be based on the objective information you obtained in the analysis process.
21. If relevant, include an international perspective to the analysis.

The paper will be graded on how well the policy is critically analyzed. Are statistics, case examples, research, and objective information used to support the analysis process? Are both opponent and proponent positions discussed in the analysis? The papers should be at least 15 pages in length, typed, and doubled spaced. Use APA style of referencing.

Due date: November 18, 2002

Policy Hearing Report

Attend at least one public council or committee hearing or meeting in one of the following areas: legislative hearing, city government, county government, state senate/legislator meeting, school board, public transportation, welfare advisory committee, police review board, etc.

Read the paper for a few weeks and find an issue that is currently being debated publicly. Attend the meeting in which your issue is on the agenda. Include the following information:

22. Provide newspaper articles that you have used to track the issue.

23. Provide notes from the meeting
24. Your report should include the following points:
- Who attended the meeting?
 - Who spoke and whom did they represent?
 - Provide your analysis of the issue:
 - ⊘ Any public interest, Why or why not?
 - ⊘ How has the media influenced the debate?
 - ⊘ Describe the different perspectives on the issue. What are the similarities and differences in these perspectives?
 - ⊘ How does the committee/hearing process restrict or foster communication, participation, and influence?

Check with the instructor on your chosen issue for topic approval. The paper should be typed, double-spaced, with no spelling or grammar errors. The length of the paper should be 3-5 pages. The newspaper articles, notes from the meeting, and report should be turned into your instructor.
